Topics Discussed:
This sixth week made it able for us to work more on some type of diagrams such as DFD, Sequence and Class Diagrams. According to the tasks assigned on last week everyone had made a lot of progress for this week's presenting. Firstly, Endi presented his sequence diagrams and explained how he made them simpler and more understandable by using references to other parts of sequence diagrams. Alban and Alesio had worked on DFD level 0. Both of them had developed a different way of presented those diagrams. Alban simplified his diagrams by saying crud for the repeated actions while Alesio represented on his diagram every action one by one. Tea presented her work on the first draft of class diagrams. In this way it would be easier for us to develop the platform while having an outline of classes that are going to be used. Megi checked everybody's work and made her comments about each work.

The next week will be the midterms week so it would be impossible for us to work on the software engineering, but despite this, Megi proposed the plan for the week after Midterms. The main plan is to focus mostly on the coding part and leave the "papers" work to only two people. It was discussed that those people could be Yusuf and Omer, while the other part of team would develop the product. Specifically, Alban, Alesio and Endi on Backend while Megi and Tea on frontend.

Decisions Made:

- All diagrams should be finished before Friday and uploaded on GitHub.
- Everyone should do a few touch ups on their diagrams until the work is completely done.
- For the week after midterms, we would focus mostly on the coding part of software where we would divide our team in three parts. The documentation team represented by Yusuf and Omer, Backend team by Alban, Alesio and Endi and Frontend team by Megi and Tea.

Tasks Assigned:

- Tea and Megi would be responsible for the frontend.
- Alesio, Alban and Endi would be responsible for backend.
- Yusuf and Omer would take care of any further documentation needed for later stages.
